Personal Website Project Reflection

This project was a fun and exciting way to test my current knowledge of HTML and CSS. There were new menu variables I learned like the accordion dropdown that I included in the Portfolio.html page and the Menu bar all together that can be found on every page of the website. Because it was ultimately a project that I know I would be revisiting in the future, I tried my best to showcase my best work so that when it is revisited, I can see how much I've grown.
